REV. CHAS. H. PRATT TO HOGE MEMORIAL

Accepts Call and Stands Examination Before Presby

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

BALHIAM, GOOCHLAND CO., VA., October II.—East Hanover Presbytery began its second day's setsion this morning with devotional exercises, conducted by Dr. Isaam Curd.

Licentiate Chas. II. Pratt was recoived from Hose Memorial Church, of Richmond, for him to become their pactor was presented and accepted by him. Presbytery then proceeded to examine him with reference to ordination, and he passed satisfactory examinations on personal piety, theology, church history, the Sacraments and the English Bible, Greek, Hebrew and philosophy.

Mr. Pratt also preached a sermon, He will be ordained and installed at Hoge Memorial Church, Richmond, by a commission of Presbytery.

Mr. Pratt also preached a serinon. He will be ordained and installed at Hogo Memorial Church, Richmond, by a commission of Presbytery.

Rev. D. K. Walthall was made chairman of the committee on home missions. This committee has charge of all the home mission work of the Presbytery. The following paper on temperance of the tollowing paper on temperance of the tollowing paper on temperance of the tollowing paper on the tollowing paper of the presbytery sees with pleasure awakened attention to the evils of intemperance and the good of temperance in the mass of alcoholic liquors and other harmful drugs, not only in the conscience of the Christian world, but also in the Judgment of the business and legislative worlds; and therefore deems it an auspicious time to beg all the members of our churches to observe carefully the most temperate habits in their communities and to encourage all proper social and legislative policies which have this end in view; and that the attention of the sessions of the churches be called to this resolution in their examination of the records of Presbytery."

Dr. Russell Cecil rend the report on most encouraging reperts conling from all of the mission fied, but it showed also that the receipts for this work have fallen off largely since last year, and called upon the churches to do all they can to make up the deficiency.

Rev. J. Mercer Blain, a missionary from China, made a most excellent address on mission work in China.

Rev. Russell Cecil. D. D., preached an elequent and powerful sermon by order of Presbytery on family training.

Their Strenuous Life.

Dr. Carrington, in asserting that these adots "were half-starved," was evicadets "were half-starved," was evi-dently ignorant of the active and stren-uous life led by cadets during the spring months, and especially during and just hefore the finals. During the finals ca-dets give many military exhibitions, the weather is warm, the usual festivities occur at night, and late hours prevail; consequently, of course, just after the termination of the session, the late hours, the festivity, etc., show their effects. Instead of being half-starved, they were the festivity, etc., show their effects. Instead of being half-starved, they were just as are the cadets at West Point and just as are the caders at West Point and Annapolis at that season—without surplus flesh, but in splendid physical condition. Probably no set of young men in the world are in better. The Doctor was either mistaken in his diagnosis as to these cadets in the summer of 1604, or in error in his statement of fact, or was asked to examine cadets of an unusually inferior physique.

Again, Dr. Carrington, in his letter of September 19th, surs: "If I may be pardoned for a suggestion, the bulk of the trouble really lies in the cooking. A good bread cook would help the cause wonderfully, though no good cooking could possibly have helped that beef."

This statement was apparently regarded by Dr. Carrington as a remarkable disovery made by him; whereas the board, in June last had fully known, considered and acted upon the fact that the cooking and service of the food and the beef were not all that they should have been during the session of 1904-5. Dr. Carrington's suggestion that "a good bread cook would help the cause won-derfully" is another emanation of genlus. The bread cook was changed at or about the time that the Doctor took his derfully" is another cmanation of gentius. The bread cook was changed at or about the time that the Doctor took his famous dinner at the institute, and it presume from his letter that he was in ignorance of that fact.

Dr. Carrington, in this letter, refers to Dr. Upshur, and the impression is left by his letter that Dr. Upshur agrees with him in his statements contained in that letter. If do not know what took place between him and Dr. Upshur. Dr. Carrington did not announce a very wonderful proposition when he stated that he knew that Dr. Upshur was heartly in accord with the proposition that good bread and butter and good meats, all properly cooked, should be served to the cadets at the Virginia Military Institute; that is a proposition which all persons approva, and we have endeavored to have that done.

Mr. Hamilton's Letter.

When I received on September 20th the lotter of Dr. Carrington, dated September 19th, I thought that the doctor's intention was to call the attention of the board in correcting detects, consequently, on September 20th, I wrote him the letter, which he has published, in, which I thanked him for writing me and stated that the board wished every ald we could get in bettering conditions at the institute in every way; that the board and the superintendent had entanged at the food varied from time to time and that the food varied from time to time and that the food varied from time to time and that the food varied from time to time and that the food varied from time to time and that the food varied from time to time and that the food varied from time to time and tha Mr. Hamilton's Letter.

I thought that his letter was intended in good faith, although intemperately expressed, and treated it with the courtesy which I thought good faith deserved, but I made no admission of his intemperate, and, as I believe uit-justifiable statements. I stated what the board of visitors and I believed to be the true state of affairs.

When Mr. McClure resigned at the end of the session of 1904, as above stated.
It became necessary to select and appoint his successor, and upon the recommenda-tion of General Shipp, the superintendent Mr. J. W. Gilmore, of Rockbridge county, was appointed commissary and quarter-master, and proceeded to the discharge of his duties. Mr. Gilmore was a man of middle age, in good health, regarded by the people of his community and county the people of his community and county as a sensible and correct han, and had been honored by them as a representative of their county in the last Constitutional Convention; he was believed by those who knew him in the vicinity, and by the superintendent, and certainly by his associates in the convention, to be a man of high character and good sense, and it was believed by the board of visitors that he would make as good a commissary and quartermester as we could get, although he was hexperienced in such work. He was, therefore, elected.

I stated in my letter of September 20th to Dr. Carrington, that the defects in the food during the season of 1991-95 were doubtless dut to the inexperience of Mr. Gilmore, and that I doubted whether he could learn to do such work well, and man of high character and good sense

The board of visitors, met in special session at the Virginia Military Institute on the 30th of September, 1905, to dis on the soon of september, has, to dis-charge its duties, and, among other things, to consider the compaint of Dr Carington. The members of the board present at the meeting were: Adjutant-General William Nalle, Mr. A. F. Palve-General William Nalle, Mr. A. F. Ravenel, of Roanoke; Captain John N. Tabb, of Gloucester county; Mr. W. T. Shellds, of Lexington; Colonel Francis L. Sm..., of Alexandria; Captain James L. Win., of Abingdon; Dr. John N. Upshur, of Abingdon; Dr. John N. Upshur, of Richmond; Hon. P. F. Brown, of Botetourt; Mr. Thomas W. Shelton, of Norfolk, and myself, the only absentee being Dr. J. W. Southall, superintendent of public instruction. The board was in session, with short intervals for dinner and supper, from 10 A. M. until 12 o'clock or the night of the 30th of September, took a recess during the next day. Sn. took a recess during the next day. Senday, and on Monday sat from 9 A. M. until 12 M. Dr. Upshur, owing to engagements in Richmond of an imperative nafure, left on Sunday, and Captain Tab on Monday morning early; all the other members of the board who had been present were present on Monday when the resolution of the board with respect to the complaint of Dr. Carrington was finally considered, and the action of the members of the board present was unan-lmous. During the session of the board, imous. During the session of the board, not only were many cadets examined, both formally and questioned informally, with respect to the food, but members of the board personally examined and inspected the food in the mess hall at different meals, and, not relying upon what they merely saw on those occasions, asked cadets if the food which they saw furnished was a fair sample of the meals or dinarily furnished, and the answer was in the affirmative.

nished was a fair sample of the means ordinarily furnished, and the answer was in the affirmative.

Consequently, and based upon their personal inspection, their information obtained from the cadets, and from none others, and obtained forficially and unofficially, the board unanimously adopted the resolution published by Dr. Carrington, in which it is stated that, after investigation, the board was of opinion that the complaint made by Dr. Carrington was not justified by the facts; that that board saw no occasion at that time to alter is action taken at the June meeting, 1905, except to say that the food was neither so well cooked nor served as it should be, nor so unsatisfactory as had been charged, and that it deemed it advisable to state that there was no just ground for the statement that cadets do not receive sufficient food for proper nourishment; that the conditions now and heretofore refute such a statement; and at the same time the board reiterated its position taken in June, that the management of the commissary department and at the same time the board relterated its position taken in June, that the man-agement of the commissary department was unsatisfactory, and should be recti-fied; otherwise the department should be reorganized.

This was the deliberate and unanimous action of the following persons: Adjutant-General William Nalle, Captain James L. White. Colonel Francis L. Smith, Hon. P. F. Brown, Mr. Thomas W. Dr. Carrington claims the right as a citizen and a patron of the Institute to call the attention of the board to any cylls that exist in its management, and says "if they do not heed me and correct the evils, it is my duty to ,-op shooting at the evils until they are corrected."

He is entirely right in saying that, as a citizen of Virginia he has a perfect right to criticise the management of the institution, and to call the attention of the board to any evils that exist in that management; such criticism is welcomed, as I informed him in my letter of September 20th, provided it is intended to correct the defects suggested, but I cannot agree that, if the board differs with him as to the management of the Virginia Military Institute, his judgment is to be the criterion by which so-called evils are to be corrected. He arrogates to himself a knowledge and a right which others will not readily accord him and will regard as possibly ridiculous.

Dr. Carrington then proceeds to give ulous.

Dr. Carrington then proceeds to give the members of the board of visitors a little taffy, saying that there are no higher, more conscientious gentlemen in the State of Virginia. As he says nothing about their sense, I presume, from his comments, that he thinks they have no fewer are ability. As to this, possibly he force or ability. As to this, possibly he is not a competent judge.

Gives Board Taffy.

Gives Board Taffy.

After giving the board this dose of taffy says: "But boards will be boards, to the end of time. They will meet with that 'Come, now, gentiemen, let's got to business quick; I must catch the evening train home' idea uppermost in their mind, and they catch that evening train home, in spite of the wise chief, after they have passed some ringing resolutions, eaten dinner and adjourned, and I happen to know that some of our most distinguished members of the Virginia Military Institute board do this very thing."

I presume that Dr. Carrington knows of and states truly the conduct and character of the members of the boards with whom he has come in contact. As to his general experience and knowledge on that subject, I have nothing to say, but as to the board of visitors of the Virginia Military Institute, for the last twelve or fifteen years, during which time I have sexued even that yourd. I am commelled

Military Institute, for the last twelve or fifteen years, during which time I have served upon that board, I am compelled to say that his statement is erroneous and incorrect. I personally have not failed to attend any meeting of the Virginia Military Institute Board since I was appointed a member, some twelve or fifteen years ago, I think, and I have never failed to be present at the time appointed for the meeting, and to remain until all the work was fully done and the meeting finally adjourned, and the statement which I make as to myself may generally be said to be correct of my associates on that board since I have been a member of it. I have never known a more patient, thoughful, disinterested, carnest body of men in the disknown a more patient, thoughtful, disinterested, earnest body of men in the discharge of their duty in my experience in life; and it must be remembered that they are not among the patriotic people who serve for situates or any other remuneration. I do not know to whom Dr. Carrington refers when he states that he happens to know that some of our most distinguished members of the Virginia Military Institute Board do what he describes as getting through too quickly and getting off on the evening train, unless he refers to Dr. Unshur having left on the Sunday morning after this board met, or to Capitain Tabb having left on Monday morning. If he does, they can jourbiless herek for themselves. Let him name the men.

themselves. Let him name the men.

Did More Than Resolve.

Dr. Carrington says that resolutions passed never cured an evil, and never will, and that the time for resoluting has passed, Ho is perfectly correct in saying that resolutions alone will never cure an evil, but this is a very chean and sophistical kind of argument. Boards must necessarily express their views, wishes and directions through the medium of resolutions, and, whilst resolutions without bodng put in effect do little or no good. Dr. Carrington does not say that the resolutions were not put into effect as far as practicable, or that an honest affort was not made to put them into effect, and if he were to so state, he would he in error.

The head and front of the offending of the Board of Visitors of the Visitoral Military Institute seems to be that eight members of the Board of Visitors differed with Dr. Carrington as to the subject of his intemperate and hysterical complaint, and did so after knowing much more about the subject than he ever did, and after much more thorough investigation tixus he ever gave it.

Dr. Carrington complains, in substance, that the commissary was not dismissed and someone else employed at the beginning of this session. It may be that it was a mistake in the board to employ Mr. Gilimore as commissary and quartermaster; time either has or will demonstrate that, but the board acted in good faith in employing him, and acted according to their best information and judgment, and did not feel that it was just to Mr. Gilimore to discharge him without reasonable notices or before he had had time and opportunity to endeavor to correct his mistakes. The members of the board feel that they were right in this, and would not be willing to submit their judg-Did More Than Resolve.

of which the board was not previously advised. Various intemperate allegations of his were not regarded as facts, and could not have been proven, and it is idle for him to come forward with the empty talk about not being given the opportunity to substantiate his facts; he did not ask the opportunity, and the members of the board were aware of the fact that they knew many times as much about the conditions as he did. Dr. Carrington as ded.

the conditions as he did.

Dr. Carrington closes his remarkable opportunity with many good seal of hackneyed rhetoric about how seal of hackneyed rhetoric about how he loves the dear old Virginia Military Institute, with its hallowed associations, and some clap-trap as to the Stonewall Jackson Memorial Hall, and Ezekiel's statue of Virginia mourning her dead, and the Virginia Military Institute being e. part of his birthright, and that he would not sit by and let evil go unchallenged in the management of her affairs. This is all very nice, and he may have thought that it was very grand when he wrote it, but, when it is con-

Richmond cadets and is a patron of the institute, than to correct defects, is as fellows:

In June, 1904, Dr. Carrington applied to the board of visitors of the Virginia Military Institute, for the appointment as a State cadet of his stepson and ward. He falled to secure this appointment because the board of visitors were satisfied that his stepson and ward had sufficient means to pay for his education at the institute, and pursuant to their fixed policy, did not think it proper to give a State cadetship to a young man able to pay for his education, but rather to give it to young men who were needy. Dr. Carrington, failing to secure this appointment to a State cadetship, applied to the superintendent to have his step-made to him by the superintendent, he doubtless being ignorant of the fact thu, the board were satisfied that Dr. Carrington's ward was able to pay his expenses as a pay cadet. This tution-free appoints as a pay cadet. This tution-free appointment was of the value of $75 per asnum, and, having received it, Dr. Carrington's ward became a beneficiary to that extent of the institute.

Subsequently, upon his application, further consideration was extended Dr. Carrington by the superintendent, in modifying the usual requirements as to the times of payment to be made for board, etc., by the ward.

The class and conduct record of the

The class and conduct record of the ward up to about the end of the session of 1904-05 was good, but, on the final day of the session, the conduct of the day of the session, the conduct of the ward was such that the commandant of cadets, Major L. H. Strother, Twenty-eighth United Stafes Infantry, preferred charges against the cadet-ward. The latter havinging left Lexington before the charges reached the office of the superintendent, they were sent to his home with orders that the cadet-ward report, under arrest, at the institute on the first day of September. This led to a correspondence between the superintendent and Dr. Carrington, in which the latter insisted that the charges be tried, immediately. Dr. Carrington was informand the Virginia Miniary Institute bains of the would not sit by and let evil go unchallenged in the management of her affairs. This is all very nice, and he may have thought that it was very grand when he wrote it, but, when it is considered that of the members of the board who manage the affairs of the Virginia Military Institute, Messrs. Raivenel, Tabb, and the writer, are old cadets, and know the institute, and helped to produce the Jackson Memorial Hall and Ezeklel's monument, and have shown their love by their words, and t
